To whom it may concern,

Mr. Kami Barut was one of our most recent participants in English Volunteers for Change. This nationwide initiative to improve the English-language skills of the Costa Rican people was launched by the former President of Costa Rica, Oscar Arias in 2008 and includes ambitious goals of making Costa Rica a bilingual country by 2020. In pursuit of those goals, our International Volunteer Program brings speakers of English to Costa Rica to support the teaching of English in rural/impoverished areas, public schools, and organizations and businesses in both the private and public sector.

Kami arrived to Costa Rica in August of 2013 and he taught classes at Parque la Libertad from August-November 2013. His students were adult community members looking to gain the English skills to obtain work or advance in their careers.

Sincerely,

Alexandra Johnson
